Weather Forecast Office
San Angelo, TX
Issued Jun 09, 2020 3:17 AM CDT

Very dry air will move in behind a Pacific Front this morning, bringing elevated to critical fire weather conditions to West Central Texas. Winds will shift northwest and become gusty mid morning. Relative humidity values will fall into the 5 to 15 percent range with the driest values of 5 to 7 percent in Crockett county and the Concho Valley.

Hazardous Weather

A heat advisory will be in effect from noon to 7pm Tuesday for the highlighted counties. Temperatures will climb into the low 100s and with very humid air in place heat index values could reach 105-112 degrees for several hours. A cold front will bring drier air in from the northwest through the evening.

A summer cold front will move through this morning into the afternoon hours and produce breezy conditions as very dry air filters into the area. This will result in wide spread near- critical fire weather with pockets of critical fire weather across Val Verde County. Northwest winds are forecast to be strongest late this morning through the early afternoon hours while relative humidity values drop into the single digits. The Texas Forest Service has areas around Del Rio in very high to extreme fire danger for the day.

Hazardous Weather

Hot and humid today with high temperatures ranging from the lower 90s Coast to 100-104 West. There is a Heat Advisory in effect today for South Texas, with maximum Heat Index values 110 to 114 degrees. Isolated showers and thunderstorms expected near the Rio Grande late this afternoon.

A Heat Advisory is in effect this afternoon. Heat indices will range from 110-114 degrees. Remember to practice Heat Safety and stay cool.

Hazardous Weather

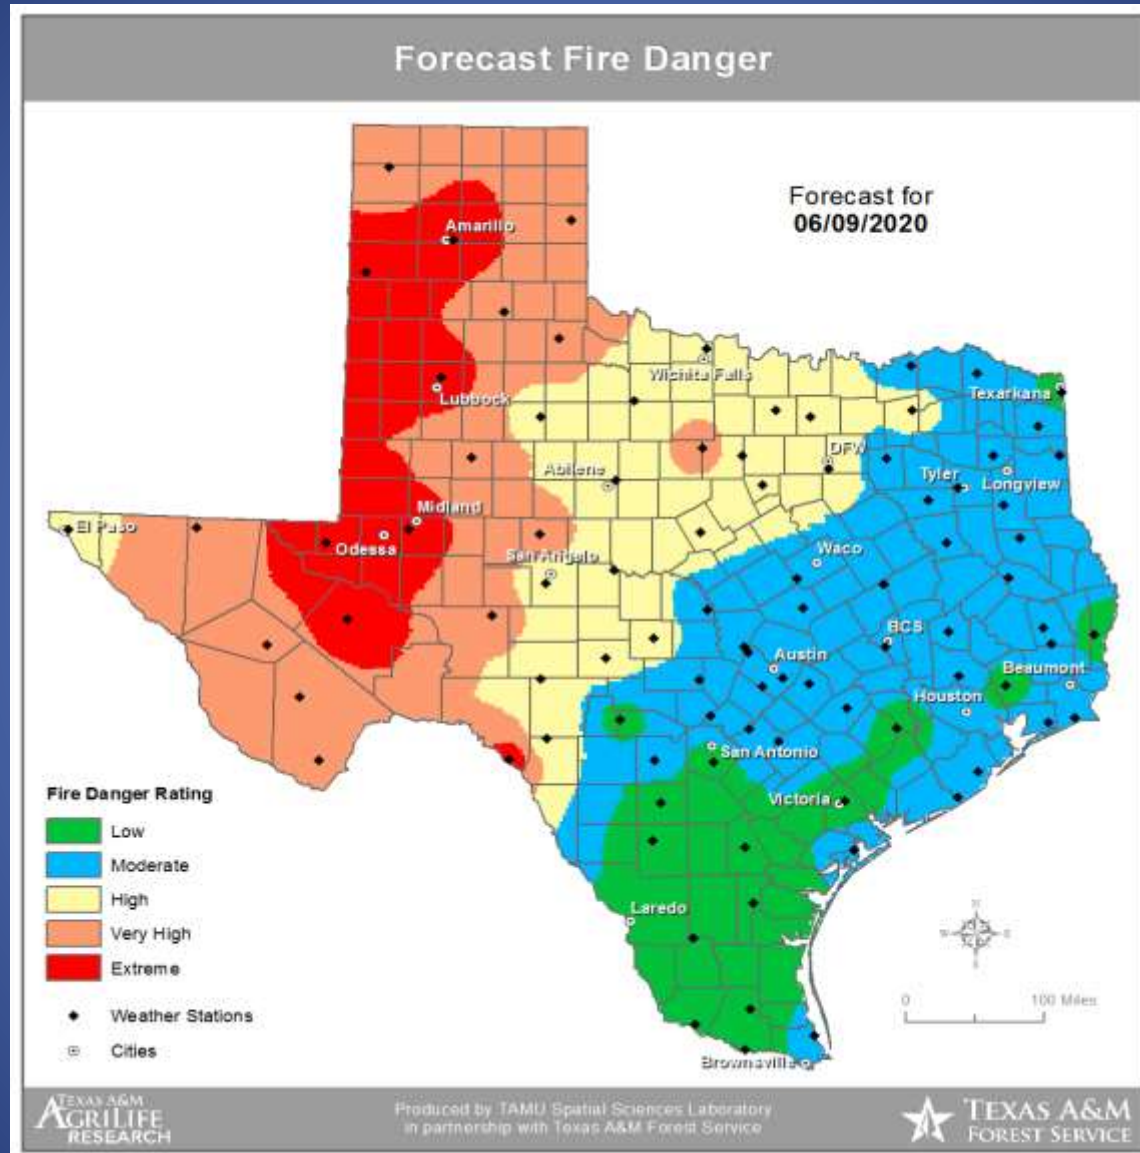

Hot and humid conditions are expected across the Rio Grande Valley and northern ranchlands today with a weak cold front moving into central Texas this afternoon. Heat index values will reach 111 to 119 degrees across portions of deep South Texas this afternoon. An Excessive Heat Warning is in effect for southwest portions of deep South Texas from 12 Noon today through 6 PM this evening. In addition...a Heat Advisory is in effect for the remainder of deep South Texas from 12 Noon today through 6 pm this evening.

High heat indices expected across SE Texas today.
